COOLIDGE TALKS TO KING ALFONSO OVER NEW PHONE SERVICE

President Sees New Peace Element In Phone Usage.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—A conversation between President Coolidge and his majesty the king of Spain opened the United States-Spanish telephone line today.

Linked by radio and telephone with King Alfonso at Madrid, the president lifted the receiver from a telephone in the U. S. chamber of commerce building here shortly after 10 a. m. EST, and said: "Your majesty, it gives me great pleasure to greet you in the name of the people of the United States."

The Spanish monarch's greeting to the president follows:

"I heartily reciprocate in my own name and in that of Spain the greetings of your excellency. "Mr. Coolidge, I thank you for the cordial words in which you do Spain the honor and justice to recognize her outstanding services to the Americas, and I agree that we ought to expect from this new means of communication ever closer relations because of the intimate and more perfect understanding between the two peoples."

"I reiterate to your excellency with my sincerest appreciation and extend my best wishes for the peace and prosperity of the United States."

"I welcome this added link, no less strong because it is invisible, between Spain and the United States. I believe it to be true that when two men can talk together the danger of any serious disagreement is immeasurably lessened and that what is true of individuals is true of nations. The international telephone, therefore, which carries the warmth and friendliness of the human voice, will always correct what might be misinterpreted in the written word."

"Whatever brings our two countries closer is of value to us and to the world. This western hemisphere, discovered by the wonderful navigators of Spain, has always owed much to your country. The language of Spain is the language of a great part of the Americas. The fine traditions of Spain are the basis of the culture of a large part of the Americas and our friendship with the great nations to the south draws us closer to their mother country. With your country and with theirs the United States stands for the promotion of world understanding and peace. I was therefore particularly pleased that Spain so promptly and generously adhered to the general pact for the renunciation of war. It was what I expected on the part of your great and peace-loving country."

"I am especially glad thus orally to greet your majesty because I know the position of great personal responsibility you hold in directing the policies and progress of your country. I wish for your majesty a long and happy life and for your country all the prosperity and happiness which come from wise and benevolent leadership in all those things which make life richer and finer."

It was Mr. Coolidge's first conversation across the Atlantic ocean. Some time ago he talked over radio telephone to the presidents of Cuba and Mexico, but today was the first time his voice has spanned the Atlantic.

Col. S. Behn, president of the International Telephone and Telegraph Corporation, was master of ceremonies at Madrid. Walter S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company who talked with the Marquis De Urquijo at Madrid, was master of ceremonies on the American side.

GRAF ZEPPELIN HALF-WAY TO BERMUDA

EXPECT ARRIVAL IN STATES LATE SUNDAY IF SPEED CONTINUES

United States Radio Stations Now In Direct Communication With Air-liner; Average, 60 Miles Per Hour.

By THE UNITED PRESS
The Graf Zeppelin was about half-way between Madeira and Bermuda this morning, wireless advices indicated. Ponta Del Gada, Azores, reported that at 7 a. m. E. S. T., the great German passenger dirigible, flying from Friedrichshafen to Lakehurst, N. J., was 700 miles west of the Azores. She was flying well to the south of the Azores to avoid stormy weather, and the position given would mean she had flown approximately 1,300 miles from Lakehurst, Madeira, which she left at about 9 a. m., E. S. T., yesterday.

At that hour the dirigible still had about 1,500 miles to go before reaching Bermuda, and from Bermuda 784 miles to New York. Her average speed from Funchal, Madeira, was about sixty miles an hour. If she maintained the same speed, she would not be over New York until 11 p. m., Sunday. Favorable wind would bring her in earlier.

The Graf Zeppelin was receiving messages from ships. The steamer New York reported at about 6 a. m. that she was sending to the dirigible and mentioned a position which checked with that given by Ponta Del Gada.

The first direct message from the Zeppelin to the United States was intercepted by the Chatham station of the Radio Marine Corporation at 3:13 a. m. today.

The message was private and the contents could not be disclosed, the New York office of the Radio Marine Corporation said.

FIRE BREAKS OUT IN STEAMER'S HOLD

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 13.—Fire which broke out in the hold of the British steamer Trojanstar off the California coast last night, was under control today, the MacKay Radio & Telegraph Company reported here today.

Four ships went to the aid of the Trojanstar last night when the Federal Radio reported receiving distress signals from the British vessel.

The Trojanstar was believed to be off the southern coast of Oregon today.

OHIO CANDIDATES PEP UP CAMPAIGN

By THE UNITED PRESS
With the Ohio candidates:

The gubernatorial candidates next week will pep up their canvass for votes and will cross each other's trail in their endeavors to inform the electorate.

Myers V. Cooper will spend Sunday night in Cleveland for a tour of the country and a radio speech in the evening. On Tuesday he will tour Williams and Deane Counties. He will be in Toledo Wednesday, Circleville and Columbus Thursday, Fremont and Huron County Friday and will return to Columbus Saturday for headquarters conferences and the Ohio State-Michigan football game.

Martin L. Davey will spend Sunday, Monday and Tuesday in Cleveland, Wednesday will find him in Wooster and Millersburg, Thursday in Columbus, Friday in London, Xenia and Springfield and Saturday in Dayton.

The candidate will speak from 8 to 9 o'clock over a radio hook-up covering the entire country. He will leave for his return to Washington at 10 o'clock, arriving here Tuesday morning.

Controversy over the religious issue was brought into the presidential campaign again last night when Senator Smoot of Utah and former Governor Arthur Hyde of Missouri issued statements from their respective headquarters criticizing John W. Davis, 1924 Democratic presidential candidate, for a radio speech on religious liberty.

There is one weakness in the Count Zeppelin and that is the fact that the airship is filled with hydrogen and, therefore, the fire hazard still remains. American airships are filled with non-inflammable helium, and have a greatly increased safety factor. In my judgment airships will be obtained when larger ships are available, with higher speed and longer operating range. The new ships being built by the British and those just authorized by congress for the United States should be ideal for the establishment of a regular trans-Atlantic service although our own ships, since they will be used to the navy, can only be used for experimental purposes.

SMITH PREPARES TO DISCUSS TARIFF IN LOUISVILLE SPEECH

Satisfied Southern Democrats With Nashville Talk

ABOARD SMITH SPECIAL TRAIN, NEARING LOUISVILLE, KY., Oct. 13.—Startled by the briskness of his enthusiastic reception in Tennessee, Governor Alfred E. Smith moved on to Louisville to make a second speech to the border states here tonight.

A day of parades and conferences faced him in Republican Louisville, where his Democratic friends have wired him they are putting up a stiff fight hoping to swing the state which went for President Coolidge in 1924.

Tariff will be the subject of the speech but detailed plans of the governor were his own deep secrets. He has declined to talk about such matters in advance since he started out on this, his second campaign tour.

Smith broke his campaign itinerary to deliver a speech at Nashville last night, designed to answer the questions which have been raised against him by his opponents in the solid south. He reaffirmed his stand for prohibition changes and bribery that have been so widespread in connection with prohibition enforcement during the past seven and a half years of Republican administration.

With Smithian irony that showed the crowd he tried to show a variation between Herbert Hoover and the Republican vice presidential candidate, Senator Curtis, over the power of the tariff as a method of arm relief. He told how Curtis had voted for the McNary-Haugen bill one day and voted against it on the veto message of President Coolidge the next, but he did not mention the bill by name.

Refusing to return to the United States without her German bride, barred from entering the country, John Munsill Ulrich, of New Haven, Conn., and New York City, has announced an appeal to the United States supreme court to compel Secretary of State Frank Kellogg to admit Mrs. Ulrich, 23, above. Ulrich married Miss Anna Minna Zenzke in Berlin last year after immigration authorities had informed him she could enter the United States.

Upon applying for a visa, Ulrich was informed his wife was barred because it was alleged she was convicted five years ago of the theft of a pair of stockings from a girl with whom she was rooming. Ulrich insists the police wiped the case from the records.

Divers Attempt To Learn If All Of Victims Dead.

PARIS, Oct. 13.—Little hope of three officers and thirty-nine men of the French submarine Ondine, which is believed to have been sunk off Oporto, Portugal, by the Greek steamer Ekaterina Couladeris.

Divers have been sent down in the position where the submarine was reported sunk in an effort to find the submersible and to learn whether any of the men within the craft still live. Thus far no trace of the submersible has been found and no tapping signals have been heard on the surface.

The Ondine has been missing since October 1. She was due to put into Bizerte, after starting from Cherbourg, on October 10. When the craft failed to make appearance a general alarm was sounded and the ministry of marine sent steamships and aircraft to start a search for the vessel—one of the second class type of French submarines. Hope was held that she merely had developed engine trouble and soon would put into port under her own power.

Yesterday, however the commander of the French steamer Albert LeBorgne arrived at Rouen and advised he had intercepted a foreign steamer's wireless on the morning of October 4 telling of having struck a fishing boat or a floating wreck.

Then the ministry was advised by the French consul at Rotterdam that the Ekaterina Couladeris had reported colliding with a submarine at 11 p. m. October 3 and that the submarine was sunk.

"GARRY" HERMANN ILL, IS IMPROVING

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 13.—Friends of August "Garry" Hermann were relieved today when it was reported the former high commissioner of baseball and probably one of the most widely known men in the United States had spent a satisfactory night and was doing well.

Hermann was removed to the hospital from his home yesterday after being in ill health for nearly a year. His condition was pronounced critical.

Hermann observed his sixtieth birthday on May 3 and for the first time in many years the occasion was a very quiet one. In former years Hermann, who had the reputation of being one of Cincinnati's greatest eaters, made his birthday the occasion for a typical Hermann feast.

Hermann is former president of the Cincinnati Baseball Club, former chairman of the national baseball commission, former ex-ruler of the Cincinnati lodge of Elks and former grand exalted ruler of the Elks.

President Sees New Peace Element In Phone Usage.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—A conversation between President Coolidge and his majesty the king of Spain opened the United States-Spanish telephone line today.

Linked by radio and telephone with King Alfonso at Madrid, the president lifted the receiver from a telephone in the U. S. chamber of commerce building here shortly after 10 a. m. EST, and said:

"Your majesty, it gives me great pleasure to greet you in the name of the people of the United States."

The Spanish monarch's greeting to the president follows:

"I reiterate to your excellency with my sincerest appreciation and extend best wishes for the peace and prosperity of the United States."

"I welcome this added link, no less strong because it is invisible, between Spain and the United States. I believe it to be true that when two men can talk together the danger of any serious disagreement is immeasurably lessened, and that what is true of individuals is true of nations. LAFAYETTE, Ind., Oct. 13.—The voyage of the Graf Zeppelin represents a landmark in the progress of aviation because it is the first trans-Atlantic flight that is in any way commercial.

Airships are very much better adapted to long flights over water than are airplanes and this is illustrated by the fact that the Count Zeppelin did not wait for fair weather, but started with the knowledge beforehand that there were serious storms over the Atlantic.

The airplane is more adapted to shorter flights over land and in this field the airship cannot compete. The Count Zeppelin is of minimum size for regular trans-Atlantic flights and better results will be obtained when larger ships are available, with higher speed and longer operating range. The new ships being built by the British and those just authorized by congress for the United States should be ideal for the establishment of a regular trans-Atlantic service although our own ships, since they will belong to the navy, can only be used for experimental purposes.

BELIEVE CREW LOST; RAMMED BY GREEK SHIP

Divers Attempt To Learn If All Of Victims Dead.

PARIS, Oct. 13.—Little hope was held today for the lives of three officers and thirty-nine men of the French submarine Ondine, which is believed to have been sunk off Oporto, Portugal, by the Greek steamer Ekaterina Coulanderis.

Divers have been sent down in the position where the submarine was reported sunk in an effort to find the submersible and to learn whether any of the men within the craft still live. Thus far no trace of the submersible has been found and no tapping signals have been heard on the surface.

The Ondine has been missing since October 1. She was due to put into Biscaye, after starting from Cherbourg, on October 10. When the craft failed to make appearance, a general alarm was sounded and the ministry of marine sent steamships and aircraft to start a search for the vessel—one of the second class type of French submarines. Hope was held that she merely had developed engine trouble and soon would put into port under her own power.

Yesterday, however the commander of the French steamer Albert LeBorgne arrived at Rouen and advised he had intercepted a foreign steamer's wireless on the morning of October 4 telling of having struck a fishing boat or a floating wreck.

Then the ministry was advised by the French consul at Rotterdam that the Ekaterina Coulanderis had reported colliding with a submarine at 11 p. m. October 3 and that the submarine was sunk.

"GARRY" HERMANN ILL, IS IMPROVING

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 13.—Friends of August "Garry" Hermann were relieved today when it was reported the former high commissioner of baseball and probably one of the most widely known men in the United States had spent a satisfactory night and was doing well.

Hermann was removed to the hospital from his home yesterday after being in ill health for nearly a year. His condition was pronounced critical.

Hermann observed his sixtieth birthday on May 3 and for the first time in many years the occasion was a very quiet one. In former years Hermann, who had the reputation of being one of Cincinnati's greatest eaters, made his birthday the occasion for a typical Hermann feast.

Hermann is former president of the Cincinnati Baseball Club, former chairman of the national baseball commission, former exalted ruler of the Cincinnati lodge of Elks and former grand exalted ruler of the Elks.

NEW SUBMARINE RESCUE CRAFT INTERESTS NAVY

This radically different salvage craft for submarines has been devised by Simon Lake, submarine engineer at Bridgeport, Conn. A diving compartment is built in the forward under side which permits divers to do rescue or salvage work with their base of operation right alongside the sunken vessel. The navy department is co-operating in the construction of the craft which is only 97 feet long and 11 feet wide. It is capable of submerging to a depth of 250 feet. CITY WOULD ENJOIN DAM CONSTRUCTION NEAR WATER SUPPLY

A permanent injunction to prevent the defendants from constructing a dam and otherwise diverting water from flowing into the tail race and over the city's water rights to the municipal waterworks plant north of Old Town is sought in a suit filed in Common Pleas Court against Eli W. and Martha B. Smith by the city of Xenia, through City Solicitor J. A. Finney.

It is set forth in the petition that the city owns certain real estate near the plant and water rights of several streams that are necessary for health of the consumers.

The defendants own land surrounding the water rights and have clogged and impeded free passage of water to the mill race by piling logs, trash and debris into the race and also constructed a dam at the head of the race, it is claimed.

Employees of the city removed the dam October 9 but Smith re-constructed it the following day and felled trees across it completely cutting off the water supply, the petition charges.

With an adequate water supply shut off, the water stands in stagnant pools above the plant resulting in an unsanitary condition injurious to users of the water, the petition recites.

It is alleged the defendants refused city employees permission to trespass on their property for the purpose of again clearing away debris in order to protect the flow of water.

Temporary and perpetual restraining orders are asked. Authority to file the injunction against David Adams and Ethelene Adams.

MOTHER DROWNS HER CHILDREN

DETROIT, Oct. 12.—An hysterical mother was held by police today charged with drowning three of her five small children.

The woman, Mrs. Betrice Cantera, 32, was found shortly after midnight by motorists who were hailed by her two older children, after they had escaped from their mother in the Detroit River.

Police found the bodies of Mary, 3, Nita, 2, and Gloria, eight months old, in the water. Nellie, 8, and Lawrence, 7, escaped.

Mrs. Cantera's explanation was that she had tired of beatings given her and her children by her husband during the last three years.

Mrs. Margaret E. Neeld, 69, widow of William M. Neeld, passed away at her home, 134 W. Church St., Saturday afternoon at 12:10 o'clock. Death was caused by complication of diseases, and followed an illness suffered since the middle of last March.

Mrs. Neeld was the daughter of the late William and Martha St. John and was born south of Xenia on the Hussy Pike, June 1, 1859. She taught school at Spring Valley several years and her marriage to Mr. Neeld took place there November 17, 1880.

She has been a resident of Xenia thirty-three years. Her husband preceded her in death September 23, 1916. Mrs. Neeld was a member of the First M. E. Church, Xenia.

Surviving are three children, Ralph M. Neeld, prominent Xenia funeral director; Miss Edith Neeld, at home and Paul W. Neeld of Newark, N. J. Another son, Charles S., died in 1919. One half-sister, Mrs. Carrie Harness of Danville, Ill., also survives.

Funeral services will be held at the home Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock with burial in Spring Valley Cemetery.

The latest estimate of injured was twenty-one. No bodies had been identified hours after the wreck.

CITY WOULD ENJOIN DAM CONSTRUCTION NEAR WATER SUPPLY

A permanent injunction to prevent the defendants from constructing a dam and otherwise diverting water from flowing into the fall race and over the city's water rights to the municipal waterworks plant north of Old Town is sought in a suit filed in Common Pleas Court against Eli W. and Martha B. Smith by the city of Xenia, through City Solicitor J. A. Finney.

It is set forth in the petition that the city owns certain real estate near the plant and water rights of several streams that are necessary for health of the consumers.

The defendants own land surrounding the water rights and have clogged and impeded free passage of water to the mill race by piling logs, trash and debris into the race and also constructed a dam at the head of the race, it is claimed.

Employees of the city removed the dam October 9 but Smith reconstructed it the following day and felled trees across it completely cutting off the water supply, the petition charges.

With an adequate water supply shut off, the water stands in stagnant pools above the plant rendering in an unsanitary condition injurious to users of the water, the petition recites.

It is alleged the defendants refused city employees permission to trespass on their property for the purpose of again clearing away debris in order to protect the flow of water.

Temporary and perpetual restraining orders are asked. Authority to file the injunction

NEW CONSTITUTION MAY CHECK STUDENT POWERS AT ANTIOCH

If the new constitution awaiting approval of Division "B" is ratified Antioch College student government, formerly noted for its freedom from faculty interference, may become practically powerless, for no longer will the faculty and students be on terms of equality. Under the proposed constitution, the faculty will be a separate unit.

in the government and will be empowered to veto any legislation of student origin.

Heretofore, faculty member were nominated for the community council just as students were, and they therefore had the same chance to gain a seat in the governing body. Now, however, they will all be ex-officio members of this body.

But this will happen only if Division "B," which begins its five weeks of school Monday, favors it.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

GOD'S WAYS PREVAIL.—For the Lord of hosts hath purposed, and who shall disannul it? and his hand is stretched out, and who shall turn it back?—Isa. 46:10.

WHAT MAKES IT GREAT?

What gave baseball its envied title of the "Great American Sport?" It is a sport in which a relatively small portion of the nation's population participates actively. Only 11 cities are represented in the two major leagues and the minor leagues and semi-professional clubs do not carry the sport in its professional aspect to all communities. The far-famed series has made baseball the great American sport.

From the stands in New York and St. Louis, on newspaper and theatre automatic baseball boards, by radio and telegraph, in the newspapers and by human messenger all America is a spectator at each world series game. Though some will be indifferent all will witness this climax in the American sport calendar.

Millions follow organized baseball from the spring training season to the final contest of the world series. Other millions pass through the gates of the major league ball parks in a season. The score of every "big league" game is carried into every nook and cranny of the country by newspaper, score board, telegraph, telephone and radio. But it takes a world series to arouse the interest of the perennial fan to fever heat and to stir the indifferent into at least a mild curiosity.

World series is a misnomer for as succession of contests so peculiarly in its application it does not exaggerate the importance of the games attributed to them by the ardent fan.

THE FIRST RADIO PASTOR

Rev. Dr. Cadman of Brooklyn, New York, has been invited to become the world's first radio pastor, to speak to a far-reaching ohok up arranged by the National Broadcasting company. Millions of people already listen to Dr. Cadman's radio addresses delivered in Brooklyn Sunday afternoons through the winter.

Dr. Cadman has won a nation-wide hearing by his intelligent and liberal views, and by the ready wit with which he answers all kinds of questions.

The power of radio preaching seems likely to become enormous. A great many people would listen to such an address who will never put on their "go to meeting" clothes and darken the doors of any church. Some may remark that that is partly because the contribution box is not passed to the radio audience. But a great many people, through the mystery of the preacher's ether voice, have been led on to higher ideals of life. The country will hope that Dr. Cadman will accept his new pulpit, which is at least 3,000 miles wide.

POLITICAL ENTHUSIASM

This political campaign will be won by enthusiasm. That does not mean the enthusiasm which merely hollers at political rallies. No doubt that has effect. People like to follow a cause that seems to stir the people. But the enthusiasm which shouts for the candidate often cools down into indifference the next day.

The kind of enthusiasm that wins the most votes, is the kind that roots around among people's personal acquaintances and induces people to register and get out to the polls. That kind of enthusiasm may make as many votes as can be swayed by some famous political orator who speaks in our city. The fact that so many people are doing this kind of work on both sides, makes it sure that we are going to have a very big vote cast this fall in Ohio and everywhere else.

The Way of the World

ANGLES

A German dancing teacher has created a new effect which he calls the "absolute dance." It is said to be full of awkward and angular poses. It is a revolt against what this dancing master calls too much beauty and rounded and graceful lines now found in the Russian ballet and other dances. Perhaps many of us need the same sort of treatment from life. There is little growth or improvement in softness and ease and comfort. Some hard, rough experience is needed in the diet for moral and mental health. If your lines do not always fall in pleasant, easy places, don't be sorry. Be glad. Character is the product of much grief mixed with many other things.

THE STONE

An old proverb says the stone may hurt the dog, but not as much as the hand that threw it. Despite the many examples which we are all permitted to study it is hard to understand the revengeful, catty type of mind. The moment one has achieved the reputation for repeating evil rumors and unkind stories he has lost the capacity for sustained friendship. Nobody ever quite trusts him again.

POISE

Is there a finer quality than poise? And poise is a quality that cannot be put on and taken off by a cheap soul. Poise comes only as the reward of years of effort at self-control. It comes out of the weathering of storms. It grows out of an inner certainty that you are doing the best you know how. You may be conscious of failure and yet have poise. It comes of being sure of yourself, because you have nothing to conceal. It comes finally to be forever in the place of fear.

NEWS

Speaking of proverbs, there is an old one that says "he was scant of news who told that his father was hanged." Joseph Jefferson, as was said in these columns once before, used to remark that he seldom had occasion to regret his silences. The desire to make conversation is a kind of nagging itch that besets millions of us. Having nothing worth saying we somehow feel that it is up to us to say something. And so we tell things we are not sure about, or we tell the truth when silence would be much kinder. Newspapers, magazines and books all come in for criticism on the ground of inaccuracy, but "word of mouth" is the most unreliable and inaccurate medium of all.

NEWS COMMENT and VIEWS

The Diary of a New Yorker

By CLARK KENNEDY

NEW YORK—The Republican candidate for governor of New York, Albert Ottinger, state attorney general, is the first Jew to be nominated by either of the major political parties for that office. The late Oscar S. Straus, however, was a candidate for governor or the Roosevelt Bull Moose ticket in 1912.

Ottinger is 50. A lawyer for 28 years, he began his political career in 1916 by going to the state senate. He was appointed an assistant United States attorney general in 1921, resigning in 1924 to run successfully for attorney general, and being re-elected in 1926, in spite of Al Smith. The two men have contrary policies.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, the Democratic nominee for governor, is a blue blood, an outstanding Democrat of the Wilson type, who once ran for vice president of the United States. Does anybody recall with whom?

Both men are considered of unusual quality. I've just looked over an apartment house on Thirty-fourth street, near Tenth avenue, in an erstwhile tenement district. The builder took a chance, erected a high-priced skyscraper, a partment, while wisecracks shook their heads. Prior to the completion the apartment was 85 per cent rented. Where do all the people come from in New York? At least, nothing is too far out of the way for somebody.

Of course, now, apartments are to go up all around.

How changed are the times! It no longer pays to advertise exclusively.

"The Pennsylvania Limited,"

New York, Chicago, was the first limited all-Pullman train in America. The railroad boasted of it.

Now the road has added a day coach to this train, for persons who don't desire Pullman accommodations, persons who prefer to sit up all night. True enough, extra fare still is charged, but no longer is the train advertised as all-Pullman.

Of course, there are other trains, finer and faster, that are all-Pullman.

But New York does tend to go Democratic with a small "d." Perhaps it's the subway that are doing it. Streets are so congested, millions leave their cars uptown and ride down in the subway. After that, any other sort of riding on rails is luxury—considering the crowds.

Once again, speaking of "The Strange Interlude," James O'Neill's Theatre Guild play, that begins at 5:30 p. m. and lasts until 11:10, with an intermission of one hour and 15 minutes for dinner.

Judith Anderson loses much of the play for me, as several thousand of her words are drowned in her throat. American actors should learn enunciation. It may pay them now, since the talking movies have arrived.

The O'Neill play not only was the best play of last season (winning the Pulitzer prize) but it remains the best play of the new season.

Charles B. Driscoll, writer of "The World and All" column for Central Press, can testify that Henry Mencken, ironic editor and writer, and reputed ascetic, is not wholly "lost" in private life. For Driscoll, in writing an article for Benken's "American Mercury" was the recipient of a letter from Mencken calling Driscoll, by the way, besides writing for the Mercury and Central Press, manages to write for McClure's and other magazines, and yet he has no time to chat about nippers. He writes private yarns, too, and has an excellent collection of books on pirates.

He came from Kansas, a long way from the sea.

Several New Yorkers still are going by daylight saving time, the change having failed to save much about the change back to standard time on September 30.

Really, some Gothamites are more back woods than any so-called mountaineers I know. But it's a draw on the honor they drink.

Kellygrams

By FRED C. KELLY

Nearly everybody, from small boy to old man, has a secret desire to be regarded as an old chap, a fellow. I recall an old chap, with a throat whisker and condescending smile, who never did any serious wrong in his life. He didn't have the energy to do anything very wicked. Yet he used to arise in his pew at revival meetings and boast, for 20 minutes at a stretch, about his sins.

THUMP! THUMP! THUMP!

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg is very variable.

Sometimes he makes even his best friends pretty tired. Other times he is so absolutely all right that his erstwhile severest critics feel like hugging him.

One of these latter times is now.

In connection with Frank B.'s answer to the naval proposition which it was the Anglo-French plan to fill-in this country into agreeing to.

One need be no fire-eating jingo as an American, to turn rather sour when a couple of supposedly friendly neighbors combine together in a scheme to stick Uncle Sam with a bogus bug brick.

Aside from the fact that we know they mean to string him, it insults our uncle's intelligence. Merely because Charles Evans Hughes, Secretary Kellogg's predecessor as our diplomatic negotiator-in-chief, allowed us to be disgraced by hornsawedged, at the 5-powers naval conference of 1921-2, is no reason why we should permit it to be rubbed in over and over again.

Not to repeat too much of a story which I have had occasion to refer to before, the main naval question of today, throughout the whole world, is one of cruisers—between Great Britain and the United States.

Various other considerations enter into it somewhat, but that is the crux.

Great Britain has a naval station—equipped with drydocks, heaped up with fuel, munitions and miscellaneous supplies, provided with every imaginable convenience for fighting craft—at almost every place where a few acres of land show above sea level this entire globe around.

Under the Union Jack, a small open boat, with a machine gun mounted in its bow, could pretty well circumnavigate the earth with dodging bad weather between stop-overs, and re-fueling, re-provisioning and re-litigating in these British stations, one after another—daily, almost.

But an American warship, with ports of call under the Stars and Stripes only at several thousand-mile intervals, must be a big vessel to brave such voyages.

Britain's idea was a new treaty, so drawn as to limit cruisers to a size adequate for her purposes, with her many stations, but so small as to reduce America to naval impotence.

Exactly what France was to get out of the bargain is a problem—for the Anglo-French dick is still a secret. However, there are plenty of attractive promises which London may have made to Paris—though possibly not altogether to the advantage of the United States.

At any rate, it was thought undesirable to enlighten us—which is a trifle suspicious, maybe.

Women of Japan Will Vote

That suffrage in Japan will be extended to women by 1940, is the prediction made by Prof. Kenzo Takayanagi of the Law school of Tokyo in a recent lecture. He based his prognostication on the history of the rapid modernization of Japan's legal system.

However, outfielders have one advantage. They are too far away to hear what the bench manager has to say.

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Your child's diet should be carefully watched during the early years of his life. He is past infancy, and yet many mothers have a habit of clinging to infant foods, forgetting that the growing child needs much greater energy than he did when he was an infant, and that his diet must provide time for the strengthening teeth and bones, vitamins for his general good health, sugar and carbohydrates for the tremendous energy that he consumes during the day's play.

From two years on, your child should be able to digest every vegetable. Beef, poultry and fish should feature in the child's menu; not too often, but enough to give him a balanced diet.

One quart of milk a day is not a drop too much for the growing child. It may be difficult for him to use all of this as a beverage, but the wise mother knows in how many different and fascinating combinations milk dishes can be served. Creamed soups, vegetable custards and other milk puddings are all admirable ways of serving milk. A child who may scorn bread and milk separately will relish a steaming dish of milk toast.

Routine exercise is good, but not exactly essential, since the normal average child must burn up his energy by exercising the little body. However, in beauty's name, it will be an excellent simple daily lesson in rhythmic exercise for your child. I have found that children love organized play. There is no better way of developing supple, sturdy bodies and strong muscles than by taking your child each day through ten minutes of a simplified daily dozen.

Stretching up, out, sideways and down in four even counts is a very simple and very excellent exercise for the child to master. Lying flat down on the floor and kicking his little heels in and out will not only serve as an outlet for surplus energy, but will strengthen his legs and spinal cord. Bending will help to preserve the grace which is inborn in the child.

If the child, at this age, shows signs of becoming overweight, watch the diet and plan regular exercise. You may find that you are the mother of a little lazy-bones who likes nothing better than to stretch out on the most comfortable couch and munch away at all kinds of indigestible and fattening foods. Stop it by all means. Don't let the child imperil his own future because you are too busy to supervise his actions at this age.

DON'T WEAKEN YOUR HEALTH BY FREAK DIETING OR DRUGS

Overweight and Insurance. "Dear Doctor: In October, 1927, my weight was 238 pounds. I sent for your pamphlet and struck to its directions until I lost 84 lbs. and am now down to 154 pounds. Never felt better in my life. I am 26 years old. Here's my problem: "Two weeks ago I applied for life insurance and they turned me down. I have been to the doctor who examined me and he said there was not a thing wrong with me only that I was so much overweight a year ago and now am almost normal! Why should this bar me when I reduced two and one-half pounds a week, as your pamphlet advised? Please answer soon."

"MRS. R." I don't understand your rejection, either, Mrs. R. The only thing I can think of is that you did not tell the company that you had reduced by a balanced diet and they were afraid that your resistance had been undetermined by disease or freak dieting or drugs, or there may have been the thought that you might not keep your weight down and would go up again to the dangerous point you were before. Two hundred and thirty-eight pounds is certainly a dangerous weight.

Insurance companies usually will not insure those who are much overweight because overweight is the forerunner of many diseases: heart, kidney, diabetes, cancer, etc. This means a decided shortening of the life expectancy. Naturally they lose money if the person insured dies before the amount they have insured him for is paid in.

By the way, the pamphlet does not say to reduce as much as two and one-half pounds a week! Except after the first week (when, if you go on the "shrink stomach" period of a liquid diet for a few days, you may lose five to ten pounds). It says to reduce by one and one-half to two pounds a week, average. If you want to lose more than this, you should be supervised by a physician, otherwise you may limit your diet so much that you will get some deficiency disease.

I suggest you go back to the insurance company in a year's time, showing them that you are still normal weight, and give them your assurance that you are going to keep normal.

Abnormal Fear of Dentistry. "I am 26 years old and very nervous. I have very carious teeth with five abscesses, but am petrified at the thought of going to the dentist. Really, if I had my choice of the electric chair or the dentist chair, I don't know which I would choose. Can you help me over this terror?"

"MRS. H." Everyone has a certain fear of going to the dentist, but yours is abnormal. Mrs. H., you are probably the result of it. I am sorry you suffered before. Modern methods were used, perhaps your teeth are super-sensitive.

If you haven't a modern dentist in your town, go to a city where there is one, for with modern dentistry methods there is no great pain. It can be done under a short general anesthesia which the patient comes out of immediately, or with local anesthesia. Even filling can be done under local anesthesia if necessary. Drilling is done under a stream of water (kept flowing from a syringe held by the assistant) which prevents the drill from getting hot. (It really is the heating of the drill which causes the pain.) In all ways, modern dentistry is practically painless.

Don't neglect your teeth, Mrs. H. Besides general poisoning, the infection you have in your mouth, in your joints, or, worse still, in your heart valves, and give you serious complications.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Peters cannot diagnose, nor give personal advice. Your questions, if of general interest, will be answered in the column, in turn. Requests for articles must be accompanied by a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope and 2 cents in coin for each article, to cover cost of printing and handling. For the pamphlet on reducing weight, 10 cents in coin, with fully self-addressed, stamped envelope, must be enclosed. Address Dr. Peters, in care of this paper.

SHOULD MAN WED OLDER GIRL? QUESTION IS THEIRS TO DECIDE

Every once in a while the old question bobs up: should a man wed a girl who is older than he? It is entirely a matter for the parties involved to settle. I have known of very happy marriages where the man was younger than his wife. The woman who marries a younger man must, however, make up her mind to a lot of chaffing, and if she is sensitive she will suffer. Her friends, and even her husband, no matter how attached he is to her, will joke her about her age, so she needs must have a good thick skin or else keep her age a secret.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a young man 21 years old and in love with a girl five years older than myself. She is a very nice girl and I like her much. Do you think it advisable to keep on going with her? Would people make fun of me? I look every bit as old as she does."

If she is the girl for you—which means that you enjoy her company more than that of any other—continue going with her by all means. That is, if you can stand a bit of chaffing from your friends. Five years make very little difference, and if she is willing to withstand her friends' remarks about "nicking them young," you should not mind a bit of teasing. Who cares, as long as you are happy? It's nobody's business but yours, is it?

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a woman 43 years old. My husband died eight months ago. Now there is another man who is a widower who wants to go with the cups where they will cool quickly."

My friends say I have not waited long enough to be courted by another fellow. He is considerably older than me but he seems to think a lot of me. Do you think I should continue our friendship or wait longer for my second love? He has asked me to marry him but I told him to wait a little longer. He does not object to waiting, but do you advise me to keep on my friendship ship?

There is no reason at all for you to continue lonely if you like the man. Wondering, just because your friends say so. The happy you were in your married life the harder it is to be alone. The customary time to wait is a year at least, out of respect for your husband's memory, and as long as your lover is willing to wait that long I'd wait.

"Mrs. Lee: Will you kindly advise me what to do? I am 37 years old and married once, but separated from my husband one year. He has filed suit for divorce and it has been granted, but I will have to wait six months to marry again. I have one boy eight years old and a man 20 years older than myself. I love him dearly but my own life, but he is so jealous. He is not so wealthy, but is just as true and kind and affectionate as he can be. He drinks some and is not willing to give up drink for me, but promises he won't drink much at a time.

"WORRIED HEART." If you love him and think he will make a good husband and a good father to your little boy, I can see no reason why you should not marry at the end of the six months' probation.

Peter's Adventure

The Mystery of the Marsh

"Cormorant was very happy to have found his old friend. 'I don't at all mind looking at you now, Darter! I can see your wings and your pretty green feathers, but I can never become used to the way you glide about in the water with your body all covered up and only your long snaky neck showing above the surface. Br! It makes me shiver!'"

"It really is a wonder that long before this some Two-Legs has not mashed your head with a stone, they hate sea-serpents and that is exactly what you look like."

"Or perhaps one might take you for an eel, a great fat eel that was standing on the tip of his tail and floating around just on purpose to scare folks."

"You are the mystery of the marsh. No stranger could guess just who or what you were. But to change the subject, where is your nest this year? I didn't have a chance to visit you before I went on my travels, you know."

"Right over yonder on the lowest branch of that old tree," replied Darter, craning his neck and pointing out the spot with his long, sharp bill. We think of a thing like that. One would think we have a pretty fine location, and although as simple as can be, the house just suits us. How mad I was at a Gull the other day! He actually said that our house was no good at all—nothing but a lot of old sticks thrown together. Wasn't that mean of him? To be sure, our house is made of sticks—wife and I go out every spring for a lot of them. Now, I can tell you, you would certainly say so if you tried very purpose, and it takes once tried to find enough to make the nest the right size and shape!"

"The very idea of Gulls saying a thing like that! One would think he built a mansion to hear him talk and truth to tell, his old house is not one bit more handsome than ours."

"Good gracious, did you hear that cry? That sounded like my wife's voice. I wonder if anything has happened to her. I'll see you later!"

"Down into the water dropped Darter, without making a bit of noise. Scarcely a ripple marked the spot where he had struck the surface. Off he scurried, with his head in that snaky manner that, well, as he knew by him talk and truth to tell, his old house is not one bit more handsome than ours."

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

GOD'S WAYS PREVAIL.—For the Lord of hosts hath purposed, and who shall disannul it? and his hand is stretched out, and who shall turn it back?—Isa. 14:27.

WHAT MAKES IT GREAT?

What gave baseball its envied title of the "Great American Sport?" It is a sport in which a relatively small portion of the nation's population participates actively. Only 11 cities are represented in the two major leagues and the minor leagues and semi-professional clubs do not carry the sport in its professional aspect to all communities. The far-famed series has made baseball the great American sport.

From the stands in New York and St. Louis, on newspaper and theatre automatic baseball boards, by radio and telegraph, in the newspapers and by human messenger all America is a spectator at each world series game. Though some will be indifferent all will witness this climax in the American sport calendar.

Millions follow organized baseball from the spring training season to the final contest of the world series. Other millions pass through the gates of the major league ball parks in a season. The score of every "big league" game is carried into every nook and cranny of the country by newspaper, score board, telegraph, telephone and radio. But it takes a world series to arouse the interest of the perennial fan to fever heat and to stir the indifferent into at least a mild curiosity.

World series is a misnomer for as succession of contests so peculiarly in its application it does not exaggerate the importance of the games attributed to them by the ardent fan.

THE FIRST RADIO PASTOR

Rev. Dr. Cadman of Brooklyn, New York, has been invited to become the world's first radio pastor, to speak to a far-reaching ohok up arranged by the National Broadcasting company. Millions of people already listen to Dr. Cadman's radio addresses delivered in Brooklyn Sunday afternoons through the winter.

Dr. Cadman has won a nation-wide hearing by his intelligent and liberal views, and by the ready wit which he answers all kinds of questions.

The power of radio preaching seems likely to become enormous. A great many people would listen to such an address who will never put on their "go to meeting" clothes and darken the doors of any church. Some may remark that that is partly because the contribution box is not passed to the radio audience. But a great many people, through the mystery of the preacher's ether voice, have been led on to higher ideals of life. The country will hope that Dr. Cadman will accept his new pulpit, which is at least 3,000 miles wide.

POLITICAL ENTHUSIASM

This political campaign will be won by enthusiasm. That does not mean the enthusiasm which merely hollers at political rallies. No doubt that has effect. People like to follow a cause that seems to stir the people. But the enthusiasm which shouts for the candidate often cools down into indifference the next day.

The kind of enthusiasm that wins the most votes, is the kind that roots around among people's personal acquaintances and induces people to register and get out to the polls. That kind of enthusiasm may make as many votes as can be swayed by some famous political orator who speaks in our city. The fact that so many people are doing this kind of work on both sides, makes it sure that we are going to have a very big vote cast this fall in Ohio and everywhere else.

ANGLES

A German dancing teacher has created a new effect which he calls the "absolute dance." It is said to be full of awkward and angular poses. It is a revolt against what this dancing master calls too much beauty and rounded and graceful lines now found in the Russian ballet and other dances. Perhaps many of us need the same sort of treatment from life. There is little growth or improvement in softness and ease and comfort. Some hard, rough experience is needed in the diet for moral and mental health. If your lines do not always fall in pleasant, easy places, don't be sorry. Be glad. Character is the product of much grief mixed with many other things.

THE STONE

An old proverb says the stone may hurt the dog, but not as much as the hand that threw it. Despite the many examples which we are all permitted to study it is hard to understand the revengeful, cattiness of mind. The moment one has achieved the reputation for repeating evil rumors and unkind stories he has lost the capacity for sustained friendship. Nobody ever quite trusts him again.

POISE

Is there a finer quality than poise? And poise is a quality that cannot be put on and taken off by a cheap soul. Poise comes only as the reward of years of effort at self-control. It comes out of the weathering of storms. It grows out of an inner certainty that you are doing the best you know how. You may be conscious of failure and yet have poise. It comes of being sure of yourself, because you have nothing to conceal. It comes finally to be forever in the place of fear.

NEWS

Speaking of proverbs, there is an old one that says "he was scant of news who told that his father was hanged." Joseph Jefferson, as was said in these columns once before, used to remark that he seldom had occasion to regret his silences. The desire to make conversation is a kind of nagging itch that besets millions of us. Having nothing worth saying we somehow feel that it is up to us to say something. And so we tell things we are not sure about, or we tell the truth when silence would be much kinder. Newspapers, magazines and books all come in for criticism on the ground of inaccuracy, but "word of mouth" is the most unreliable and inaccurate medium of all.

The Diary

of a

New Yorker

By CLARK KINNAIRD

NEW YORK—The Republican candidate for governor of New York, Albert Ottinger, state attorney general, is the first Jew to be nominated by either of the major political parties for that office. The late Oscar S. Straus, however, was a candidate for governor on the Roosevelt Bull Moose ticket in 1912.

Ottinger is 50. A lawyer for 28 years, he began his political career in 1916 by going to the state senate. He was appointed an assistant United States attorney general in 1921, resigning in 1924 to run successfully for attorney general, and being re-elected in 1926, in spite of Al Smith. The two men have contrary policies.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, the Democratic nominee for governor, is a blue blood, an outstanding Democrat of the Wilson type, who once ran for vice president of the United States. Does anybody recall with whom?

Both men are considered of unusual quality. I've just looked over an apartment house on Thirty-fourth street, near Tenth avenue, in an excellent tenement district. The building took a chance, erected a high-priced skyscraper, a partment, while wisecracks shook their heads. Prior to the completion the apartment was 85 per cent rented. Where do all the people come from in New York? At least, nothing is too far out of the way for somebody.

Of course, now, apartments are to go up all around.

How changed are the times! It no longer pays to advertise exclusiveness.

"The Pennsylvania Limited," New York to Chicago, was the first limited all-Pullman train in America. The railroad boasted of it.

Now the road has added a day coach to this train, for persons who don't desire Pullman accommodations, persons who prefer to sleep all night. True enough, extra fare still is charged, but no longer is the train advertised as all-Pullman.

Of course, there are other trains, finer and faster, that are all-Pullman.

But New York does tend to go Democratic with a small "d." Perhaps it's the subway that are doing it. Streets are so congested, millionaires leave their cars uptown and ride down in the subway. After that, any other sort of riding on rails is luxury—considering the crowds.

Once again, speaking of "The Strange Interlude," James O'Neill's Theatre Guild play, that begins at 5:30 p. m. and lasts until 11:10, with an intermission of one hour and 15 minutes for dinner. Health Anderson loses much of the play for me as several thousand of her words are drowned in her throat. American actors should learn enunciation. It may pay them now, since the talking movies have arrived.

The O'Neill play not only was the best play of last season (winning the Pulitzer prize) but it remains the best play of the new season.

Charles B. Driscoll, writer of "The World and All" column for Central Press, can testify that Henry Mencken, ironic editor and writer, and reputed agnostic, is not wholly "lost" in private life. For Driscoll, in writing an article for Bencken's "American Mercury" was the recipient of a letter from Mencken calling Driscoll to bless Driscoll. Driscoll, by the way, besides writing for the Mercury and Central Press, manages to write for McClure's and other magazines, and yet he always has time to chat about pirates. He writes pirate yarns, too, and has an excellent collection of books on pirates.

He came from Kansas, a long way from the sea.

Several New Yorkers still are going by daylight saving time, the papers having failed to say much about the change back to standard time on September 30. Really, some Gothamites are more backward than any so-called mountaineers I know. But it's a draw on the honor they drink.

Nearly everybody, from small boy to old man, has a secret desire to be regarded as a devil-off-a-fellow. I recall an old chap, with throat whiskers and coney shoes, who never did any serious wrong in his life. He didn't have the energy to do anything very wicked. Yet he used to arise in his pew at revival meetings and boast, for 20 minutes at a stretch, about his sins.

THUMP! THUMP! THUMP!

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg is very variable. Sometimes he makes even his best friends pretty tired.

Other times he is so absolutely all right that his erstwhile severest critics feel like hugging him. One of these latter times is now.

In connection with Frank B.'s answer to the naval proposition which it was the Anglo-French plan to flim-flam this country into agreeing to.

One need be no fire-eating jingo, as an American, to turn rather sour when a couple of supposedly friendly neighbors combine together in a scheme to stick Uncle Sam with a bogus gold brick.

Aside from the fact that we know they mean to string him, it insults our uncle's intelligence.

Merely because Charles Evans Hughes, Secretary Kellogg's predecessor as our diplomatic negotiator-in-chief, allowed us to be disgraced by the naval conference of 1921-2, is no reason why we should permit it to be rubbed in over and over again.

Not to repeat too much of a story which I have had occasion to refer to before, the main naval question of today, throughout the whole world, is one of cruisers—between Great Britain and the United States.

Various other considerations enter into it somewhat, but that is the crux.

Great Britain has a naval station—equipped with drydocks, heaped up with fuel, munitions and miscellaneous supplies, provided with every imaginable convenience for fighting craft—at almost every place where a few acres of land show above sea level this entire globe around.

Under the Union Jack, a small open boat, with a machine gun mounted in its bow, could pretty well circumnavigate the earth, dodging bad weather between stop-overs, and re-fueling, re-provisioning and re-fitting at these British stations, one after another—daily, almost.

But an American warship, with ports of call under the Stars and Stripes only at several thousand-mile intervals, must be a big vessel to brave such voyages.

Britain's idea was a new treaty, so drawn as to limit cruisers to a size adequate for her purposes, with her many stations, but so small as to reduce America to naval impotence.

Exactly what France was to get out of the bargain is a problem—for the Anglo-French dicker is still a secret. However, there are plenty of attractive promises which London may have made to Paris—though possibly not altogether to the advantage of the United States.

At any rate, it was thought undesirable to enlighten us—which is a trifle suspicious, maybe.

Women of Japan Will Vote That suffrage in Japan will be extended to women by 1940, is the prediction made by Prof. Kenzo Takayanagi of the Law school of Tokyo in a recent lecture. He based his prognostication on the history of the rapid modernization of Japan's legal system.

However, outfielders have one advantage. They are too far away to hear what the bench manager has to say.

MENU HINT

Fried Chicken Corn Croquettes
Mashed Potatoes
Pineapple Salad Baked Custards
Salted Nuts Coffee
Personally I like the tang of such a fruit as pineapple with bland dishes like chicken, corn and mashed potatoes. If you do not care for that, use a salad of tart apples with celery and nuts and omit the salted nuts for the dessert. I include them in the menu for their hard, teeth cleaning properties after the soft custard dessert.

Today's Recipes

Fried Chicken—One tender chicken, one seeded green pepper, salt and pepper to taste, two large tomatoes, one clove garlic, five tablespoons butter. Draw wash and dry chicken, then cut into neat joints. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Heat butter in frying pan, add a clove of garlic and pepper cut in small pieces. When garlic turns brown take out, put chicken in. Fry till brown, then cover closely and allow to simmer till done. A short time before covering chicken add tomatoes peeled and cut into small pieces. Place chicken on platter and garnish with hot corn croquettes.

Baked Custard—Three eggs, three tablespoons sugar, salt, three cups milk, one teaspoon vanilla, nutmeg. Beat the eggs enough to mix the yolks and whites and add the other ingredients. Pour into custard cups and set in a pan of hot water. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit) until the custard is set. This may be tested by trying with a knife and if the mixture is jelled it is ready to remove from the oven. Set the cups where they will cool quickly.

(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe.)

Chocolate Fudge Cake
Two cups sifted cake flour, three teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon soda, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-half cup butter or other shortening, one cup sugar, two eggs yolks beaten light, three squares unsweetened chocolate, melted, one and one-fourth cups milk, one teaspoon vanilla, two egg whites stiffly beaten. Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, soda and salt and sift three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar, gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add egg yolks and chocolate, then flour and milk alternately, a small amount at a time. Beat after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla. Fold in egg whites. Bake in two greased layer pans in moderate oven. Fudge frosting is nice to put this cake together.

Diet and Health

Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet For Children"

DON'T WEAKEN YOUR HEALTH BY FREAK DIETING OR DRUGS

Overweight and Insurance. "Dear Doctor: In October, 1927, my weight was 238 pounds. I sent for your pamphlet and struck it its direction until I lost 84 lbs. and am now down to 154 pounds. Never felt better in my life. I am 26 years old. Here's my problem: "Two weeks ago I applied for life insurance and they turned me down. I have been to see the doctor who examined me and he said there was not a thing wrong with me, only that I was so much overweight a year ago and now am almost normal! Why should this be when I reduced two and one-half pounds a week, as your pamphlet advised? Please answer soon."

"MRS. H." I don't understand your rejection, either, Mrs. R. The only thing I can think of is that you did not tell the company that you had reduced by a balanced diet and they were afraid that your resistance had been determined by disease or freak dieting or drugs, or there may have been the thought that you might not keep your weight down and would go up again to the dangerous point you were before. Two hundred and thirty-eight pounds is certainly a dangerous weight.

Insurance companies usually will not insure those who are much overweight because overweight is the forerunner of many diseases: heart, kidney, diabetes, cancer, etc. This means a decided shortening of the life expectancy. Naturally they lose money if the person insured dies before the amount they have insured him for is paid in.

By the way, the pamphlet does not say to reduce as much as two and one-half pounds a week! Except after the first week (when, if you go on the "shrinking stomach" period of a liquid diet for a few days, you may lose five to ten pounds). It says to reduce but one and one-half to two pounds a week, average. If you want to lose more than this, you should be supervised by a physician, otherwise you may limit your diet so much that you will get some deficiency disease.

I suggest you go back to the insurance company in a year's time, showing them that you are still normal weight, and give them your assurance that you are going to keep normal.

Abnormal Fear of Dentistry. "I am 36 years old and very nervous. I have very carious teeth with five abscesses, but am petrified at the thought of going to the dentist. Really, if I had my choice of the electric chair or the dentist chair, I don't know which I would choose. Can you help me over this terror?"

"MRS. H." Everyone has a certain fear of going to the dentist, but yours is abnormal. Mrs. H., you are probably the result of the agony you suffered before the modern methods were used, perhaps your teeth are super-sensitive.

If you haven't a modern dentist in your town, go to a city where there is one, for with modern dentistry methods there is no great pain. If teeth need to be extracted, it can be done under a short, general anesthesia which the patient comes out of immediately, or with local anesthesia. Even filling can be done under local anesthesia if necessary. Drilling is done under a stream of water (kept flowing from a syringe held by the assistant) which prevents the drill from getting hot. (It really is the heating of the drill which causes the pain.) In all ways, modern dentistry is practically painless.

Don't neglect your teeth, Mrs. H. Besides general poisoning, the infection you have may settle in your joints, or, worse still, in your heart valves, and give you serious complications.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Peters cannot diagnose, nor give personal advice. Your questions, if of general interest, will be answered in the column, in turn. Requests for articles must be accompanied by a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope and 2 cents in coin for each article, to cover cost of printing and handling. For the pamphlet on reducing and gaining, 10 cents in coin, with fully self-addressed, stamped envelope, must accompany each article. Dr. Peters, in care of this paper.

SHOULD MAN WED OLDER GIRL? QUESTION IS THEIRS TO DECIDE

Every once in a while the old question pops up: Should a man wed a girl who is older than he? It is entirely a matter for the parties involved to settle. I have known of very happy marriages where the man was younger than his wife. The woman who marries a younger man must, however, make up her mind to a lot of chaffing, and if she is sensitive she will suffer. Her friends, and even her husband, no matter how attached he is to her, will joke her about her age, so she needs must have a good thick skin or else keep her age a secret.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a young man 21 years old and in love with a girl five years older than myself. She is a very nice girl and I like her much. Do you think it advisable to keep on going with her? Would people make fun of me? I look every bit as old as she does."

If she is the girl for you—which means that you enjoy her company more than that of any other—continue going with her by all means. That is, if you can stand a bit of chaffing from your friends. Five years make very little difference, and if she is willing to withstand her friends' remarks about "picking them young," you should not mind a bit of teasing. Who cares, as long as you are happy? It's nobody's business but yours, is it?

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a woman 43 years old. My husband died eight months ago. Now there is another man who is a widower who wants to go with me. My friends say I have not waited long enough to be courted by another fellow. He is considerably older than me but he seems to think a lot of me. Do you think I should continue our friendship or wait longer for my second love? He has asked me to marry him but I told him to wait a little longer. He does not object to waiting, but do you advise me to keep an old-fashioned ship?"

"WONDERING." There is no reason at all for you to continue lonely if you like the man, Wondering, just because your friends say so. The happier you were in your married life the harder it is to be alone. The customary time to wait is a year at least, out of respect for your husband's memory, and as long as your lover is willing to wait that long I'd wait.

"Mrs. Lee: Will you kindly advise me what to do? I am 37 years old and married once, but separated from my husband one year. He has filed suit for divorce and it has been granted, but I will have to wait six months to marry again. I have one boy eight years old. Ten months ago I met a man 20 years older than myself. I love him dearly than my own life, but he is so jealous. He is not so wealthy, but is just as true and kind and affectionate as he can be. He drinks some and is not willing to give up drink for me, but promises he won't drink much at a time.

"WORRIED HEART." If you love him and think he will make a good husband and a good father to your little boy, I should have reason why you should not marry at the end of the six months' probation.

The Mystery of the Marsh

"Cormorant was very happy to have found his old friend. "I don't at all mind looking at you now, Darter! I can see your wings and your pretty green feathers, but I can never become used to the way you glide about in the water with your body all covered up and only your long snaky neck showing above the surface. Brr! It makes me shiver!"

"It really is a wonder that long before this came Two-Legs has not mashed your head with a stone, they hate sea-serpents so, and that is exactly what you look like."

"Or perhaps one might take you for an eel, a great fat eel that was standing on the tip of his tail and floating around just on purpose to scare folks."

"You are the mystery of the marsh. No stranger could guess just who or what you were. But to change the subject, where is your nest this year? I didn't have a chance to visit you before I went on my travels, you know."

"The very idea of Gulls saying a thing like that! One would think he built a mansion to hear him talk, and truth to tell, his old house is not one bit more handsome than ours."

"Good gracious, did you hear that cry? That sounded like my wife's voice. I wonder if anything has happened to the babies. I must glide home and find out. I'll see you later."

"Down into the water dropped Darter, without making a bit of noise. Scarcely a ripple marked the spot where he had struck the surface. Off he scurried, with his head in the air, as if he knew his friend, made Cormorant quiver the very tip of his tail feather."

LANG CHEVROLETS STILL HOPE FOR FIRST VICTORY ON SUNDAY

The Lang Chevrolets will try to bring in the win column Sunday afternoon when they tackle the Washington C. H. Tigers at Cincinnati Ave. Park.

In the two games played so far this season the Lang outfit has only shown mediocre football. In last Sunday's contest with the Shamrocks, the line played well and the result was that the Dayton outfit scored but two first downs. Both of its touchdowns came as a result of fumbles by the local backs. The backfield showed flashes of form but at critical moments faltered. The Langs launched a passing attack in the last quarter which was weak. They made their only score of the season by this route two weeks ago against Miami.

Coach Halder is confident that he can improve this weakness as the team is equipped with men that are capable of playing the passing game. In Seall, Whitty and Fred Smith the locals have three who can shoot either long or short passes. In Joe "Red" Anderson, Perrine, Spahr and Doak they have four good fast ends who can receive. Halder has drilled his charges hard this past week and if the Lang eleven performs against Washington like it did in practice sessions there will be no loose handling of the pigskin.

Washington will bring a powerful grid machine to battle the locals. It has played four games this season winning two and dropping the same number for a percentage of .500. The Tigers have played Logan, Chillicothe, Ironton Tanks and Portsmouth. To lose to the Ironton Tanks is no disgrace as they have one of the best pro teams in this section of the country. Sunday's contest will start at 2:30 o'clock with Paul Rowell, of Wilmington College, in charge.

CEDARVILLE HIGH DEFEATS WEST ALEX

Scoring fourteen first downs to one for the home team and completely outplaying its smaller opponents, Coach Rolfe's Cedarville High School football team defeated West Alexandria High, 19 to 0, on the West Alex gridiron Friday afternoon.

Half, Cedarville fullback, was the individual star of the contest with Ferguson and Abel, halfbacks, also performing in fine fashion. McNeil played well for the home eleven.

Beaver Creek is next on the Cedarville schedule, the game being set for next Friday at Cedarville.

SUNDAY MOVIES

In view of the report of the grand jury concerning the picture proprietors we surmise that that body unhesitatingly overruled the fact that Xenia has developed to such significant importance that regulations of its business affairs by obsolete and minor laws, are detrimental, rather than beneficial to its welfare.

That diversified legitimate business is a city's best booster is axiomatic.

Therefore we had hopes that that jury might go on record in yielding a point, tacitly transferring the case to the city's jurisdiction by ignoring the accusations presented, which would also carry a discouragement of further attempts at civic restrictions to the conventional village goosestep.

Now in the event of convictions in these cases, by trial jury, which is problematical, complications may arise, as the defendants, naturally provoked by discriminatory attacks upon them, and aggravated by subsequent punishment, may, and justifiably, as an action of retaliation, resort to the same proceedings as those enacted by the instigators of this unpleasantness, resulting in numerous arrests, the prosecution of which would involve vast expenditures, with probably futile results.

All this unfortunate agitation is occasioned by a few isolated reactionaries, in an endeavor to impede modern business progress by ancient oppressive laws.

Forced to humble itself before the expiring embers of such old and obscure inhibitions, the dignity of fair Xenia would be sullied.

Perhaps a sweeping remedy may be near for this case, as obituaries are now being prepared, at the State Capitol, for the "dead ones," which may include the law affecting the movies, together with the one forbidding children to poll hoops on Sunday.

EXPECT MORE CATTLE

Shading off of prices of medium to good cattle is also expected to increase the number which will be fed in Ohio this winter, says H. L. Evans of Columbus who is directing the distribution of the co-operatively purchased stock. Cost of such cattle has gone down as much as $1.25 a hundred since the middle of August, he reports, although choice cattle have remained steady at a high level.

Putnam, Pickaway, and Wood counties have received the most shipments of this imported feeder stock to date, Evans reports.

Directors of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, in session this week at Columbus will choose Ohio's delegates to the annual meeting of the American Farm Bureau Federation at Chicago, it is reported here. Dates of the meeting are December 10, 11, and 12, the week following the holding of the International Livestock Show in that city.

In addition to the regular three-day annual meeting, which, in the past has been attended by nearly a hundred farm bureau leaders annually, a training school for leaders from all sections of the country has been arranged for the Friday and Saturday preceding.

A gain of 20,000 members has been made by the national organization during the first nine months of this year, according to President L. B. Palmer of the Ohio Farm Bureau who is a director in the national organization.

ANNUAL MEETING

L. B. Palmer, of Pataskala and O. J. Bailey of Tacoma will officially represent the membership of the Ohio Farm Bureau at the annual meeting of the American Farm Bureau Federation at Chicago, on December 10, 11, and 12, it has been announced from the offices of the Greene County Farm Bureau.

They were chosen as delegates at the October meeting of the board of directors of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation. At the same meeting W. K. Swan of Oxford, and A. E. Moon of Conover were named alternates.

Ohio's voting delegates were instructed to favor the combination of the national legislative offices of the farm bureau and grange organizations at Washington. At the present time each organization is maintaining a separate office, and, although it is reported, the two organizations work in harmony on most legislative matters, a combination of these offices would aid the work of both groups, Ohio leaders believe.

Dates for the next annual meeting of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation were set for February 4 and 5, 1929, the first two days of Farmers' Week at Ohio State University, Columbus.

Directors of the Federation approved plans which have been worked out by officials of more than sixty County Farm Bureaus of the state for securing more members to the organization this fall. They adopted a policy of giving members more recognition in future projects of the organization and urged county groups to do the same.

Reports of work presented the directors indicated a growth of nearly 14 per cent in membership so far this year, and greatly increased volume done by its business units, particularly in purchasing, automobile insurance, and establishment of county cooperative units for marketing and purchasing.

Feeder lambs, purchased for the feedlots of Ohio from Montana and other western states through cooperative organizations, are now coming into the state, says an announcement just received by the Greene County Farm Bureau. Nearly twice as many of these western feeders are being brought in this year as compared to last.

STUDENT RALLY IS FULL OF "PEP"

In the most approved sophomore fashion, students of Xenia Central High School stormed about the streets in the downtown business section Friday night in a "pep" rally on the eve of the important football game between Xenia and Piqua High School Saturday here.

Cheering, shouting and writhing in the intricacies of the snake dance, exuberance was unconfined. Casting off all mental restraint, boys and girls alike were in high spirits.

One girl, a student, watching the proceedings at Main and Detroit Sts., fainted from the excitement and was carried home. The incident put a damper on the celebration.

SORORITY OFFICER DIES IN ILLINOIS

Members of Alpha Theta Chapter, Delta Theta Tau Sorority have received word of the sudden death of Miss Vera Townsend, national president of the society, at her home in Lawrenceville, Ill., Thursday.

Miss Townsend has been in office since last June. Mrs. Harry Martin (Olive Huston), Dayton, formerly of Xenia, was once national president. Several members of the local chapter are acquainted with Miss Townsend, whom they met at national conventions.

STEVE IS PRAISED BY TOLEDO SCRIBE IN RECENT STORY

Steve Stahl, of the "Toledo Blade," had some nice things to say about "Steve" Phillippe, Xenia horseman, during Phillippe's visit to that city this week.

His comment was as follows: "Steve Phillippe, nephew of one of the grand old men of the light harness horse sport, has again been procured by the Toledo Driving Club to handle the important task of starting the 'dusters' during the overcoat meeting which is scheduled to start at Fort Miami Track, Monday, October 8.

"Steven has been playing around the race tracks ever since he was able to climb out of the cradle and today he is considered by practically every horseman, be he owner, driver or patron, as one of the best, if not the best in the game. His task is not only the most important but also the toughest when it comes to track officiating. Drivers and you can't blame 'em—are always trying to work into an advantageous position before they get the word to go. Steve's duty is to see them get away where they belong.

"And more often than not he has to wield a weighty hand to curb the over-enthusiasm of his friends, the drivers. He is to racing what the umpire is to baseball and yet he has managed to hold the friendship of practically every driver in the country.

"Teamed with this young but veteran official of the track is President Judge Joe McGraw, of Washington, Pa., Irishman, whose record in the horse racing game is known to every follower of the sport. Joe is one of those men one can't help liking and a credit to the game he has followed for so long."

COLORED VOTERS TO FORM G. O. P. CLUB

Voters of the fourth ward in Xenia are urged to attend the organization meeting of a Fourth Ward Hoover-Clayton Club next Thursday night, October 18, at the E. Main St. Masonic Hall.

Attorney L. H. Godman, Columbus, O., state organizer for the National Republican committee, will make the principal address at the meeting. The Rev. L. W. Johnson, Jamestown, Dr. H. R. Hawkins, J. S. Ayres and other local people will also speak.

HELD IN SHOOTING

As a result of discharging a shotgun twice at 1216 E. First St. Friday night, Frank Smith, 34, 219 Grand St., Dayton, is being held on suspicion at Central Police Station in that city. Witnesses claimed Smith fired at his mother and brother.

Smith Townsend has been in office since last June. Mrs. Harry Martin (Olive Huston), Dayton, formerly of Xenia, was once national president. Several members of the local chapter are acquainted with Miss Townsend, whom they met at national conventions.

The Little Yellow House
By BEATRICE BURTON -- RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSN. © 1928

"Oh, Perry, it's the best thing you've ever done!"
The little yellow house never showed its true gingham because Mrs. Milburn refused to let anyone see it. Her love transformed it to a shining palace where sacrificing devotion made everything out of nothing. Emmy, the only daughter, wanted to lift herself from the ordinariness of the little street she lived in, to the heights where she felt she properly belonged. After a party given by her rich cousin, Marianna, she resolved to better herself some day. Meantime she took a business course, paid for by Grandmother Pentland, and snubbed, as well as she could, Robb, the boy down the street, who worked in a mill, and who represented the life she determined never to sink into. One day Emmy met once more the man who looked like Robb. She remembered their first meeting at the ice skating rink. He had taken her home. Her mother had said, "Never make yourself even a little cheap and common, Emmy."
Emmy learns that the man is going with her cousin, Marianna. Robb again tells Emmy that he loves her.
Emmy thought life could be cruel. It had never given her anything but poverty, she told herself. And now it was offering her Robb and his love in one hand, and offering a lifetime of poverty with him in the other.
NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXIII
Mrs. Milburn caught her by one shoulder and turned her around so that they faced each other.
"You listen to me and be quiet, Emmy. What I'm telling you isn't poetry and it isn't preaching. It's just a plain hard fact. Every good thing that you have this minute is something that money didn't buy; your health and your good looks and your good brain. Isn't that so?"
Emmy's answer was half a sigh and half a groan, "I suppose so, but I could stand a little money on the side."
"Yes, and you'll soon be able to earn it. You haven't a thing on earth to complain about this Christmas Eve."
Suddenly she broke off and put her smooth shining brown head to one side with that quick birdlike movement of hers. She gave a small laugh.
"And wait until you see what I'm going to give you for your Christmas present!" she said. "It's down on the table now, only you mustn't open it until after supper. You run downstairs now and pour the water. The pitcher's in the pantry."
As Emmy went down the "wooden hill" she heard the creak of the closet door. She stood still on this step for a second listening.
The door closed very softly, and then was deep silence.
"Now, what's she gone in there to pray for this time?" Emmy wondered.
At half-past six Mr. Milburn came home. He came with Dan, and the arms of both of them were full of bundles.
"We've been to market," said Mr. Milburn. "We've brought caviar and smoked salmon and bar-le-due and Roquefort cheese, and here's a bottle of sherry that a friend of mine gave me."
Dan broke in with his loud boy's laugh. "Yeah, he gave it to you for five dollars!" said Dan, who evidently had been along when the presentation of the sherry took place.
Mr. Milburn pretended not to hear.
"And here's a tin of pate, Mother," he went on, speaking to his wife. "I thought we'd show Perry's bride that we live just as well in Flower Street as the Sinclairs do in their big house on the hill."
He was on his best behaviour, that night. He opened the door to Perry and Lovey, and he kissed Lovey in a fine, fatherly way, under the mistletoe that hung in the dining room doorway.
After supper they all opened their gifts.
Emmy let out a soft little cry of delight as she saw the gift that her mother had laid at her place, rolled in a bit of tissue paper. It was an old garnet medalion that she herself had worn for years on state occasions—a relic of her former glory.
"Oh, Mother, you darling thing!" she cried. "You knew I'd always loved it!" She stopped.
Mrs. Milburn was only half listening to her. She had taken the paper wrappings from the large flat package that Perry had brought her, and her eyes were fixed on the contents as if it were the most wonderful thing in all the world of wonderful things.
She got up from her chair and set it up against the wall of the room, where everyone could see it. It was a large framed picture—a black-and-white sketch of a great bridge flung in an arch across a sky filled with clouds and swirls of smoke. Even Emmy could see that it was a beautiful and striking thing.
"Oh, Perry—!" said Mrs. Milburn. She went down on her knees in front of it, looking closely at it. "Oh, Perry, it's the best thing you've ever done! It's the High Level Bridge, isn't it? You've drawn it from somewhere down on the Flats—so big above all those dark little streets down there."
She stood up and turned to him. "You worked on that!"
Up went Lovey's little blond eyebrows that she darkened with a brown pencil always. "I'll say he worked on it!" said she. "He worked on it at night when he should have been playing bridge at the Sears' house, and at night when he promised to take me to the theater to see Leatrice Urie. I've never sat at home so much in my whole life as I have since I married him!"
She shook her little head with its waves of shining hair, and her eyelashes dropped upon her cheek.
Perry laughed half-heartily. "Lovey says being married to me is worse than being married to a doctor or a traveling man," he said, his gaze fixed on his little wife's face.
"I don't know what use there is in having a husband who can't dance and won't even try to play cards," complained Lovey.
Mrs. Milburn looked at Perry, then at Lovey, and then back at Perry.
"Just be patient with him for a little while, Lovey," she said. "He does this work of his well. Look at that bridge! Way, a-e-s made it even more beautiful than the real bridge is! We're all going to be proud of Perry some day."
The faith that moves mountains stood in her eyes.
On Christmas day at one o'clock Grandmother Pentland sent Matthew around to the little yellow house driving her great blue limousine.
"Isn't this the easiest way to get around?" Mrs. Milburn exclaimed as they rolled along the rough streets as if they had been paved with glass. "I never have longed for riches, but I surely do enjoy an automobile ride once in a while."
"You ought to get the taxicab habit, like Father," young Dan began with a laugh, but Mr. Milburn silenced him with a single look.
"You're getting too big for your boots, young fellow!" he said furiously, and another word was spoken by anyone during the rest of the drive.
There were wreaths of holly tied with gay red satin bows in all the windows of the brick house on Prospect Street.
The day was dark, but within the big richly furnished rooms the lamps were lighted. There were bayberry candles in silver sticks on the high mantelpiece.
A Christmas tree, loaded with colored bulbs and brown-glass ornaments, gleamed just inside the door of the library. But the house was silent as a tomb when the four Milburns stepped into it. And as the heavy paneled street door closed after her, Emmy felt as if she had left all the Christmas spirit far behind her somewhere.
There was a rustling of silk against silk on the stairs and Grandmother Pentland came down to them. She always had moved like a ship under full sail. But now she came slowly, and the hands that she laid on Emmy's shoulders, as she kissed her, trembled.
"Merry Christmas!" she said to them all, one after another. There was a quaver in her voice. She seemed very frail and old, all at once.
Emmy put into her hand the little package of six handkerchiefs that she had embroidered for her. "Where's Marianna?" she asked. "Upstairs?"
Grandmother Pentland nodded. "She certainly is!" Her lips snapped together smartly as she spoke, and her eyes flashed in their old-time way for just an instant.
Emmy ran up the wide steps. She found her cousin in her bedroom getting dressed to go out. Whenever Marianna made her toilet she painted her face and put on her hat first of all. She had it on now, although she was still wrapped in a fuchsia-colored dressing gown and her bare feet were stuck into violet satin bedroom slippers.
She sat there at the powder table between the long windows smoking a cigarette that smelled like clover blossoms, and she smiled up at Emmy as she came in.

"Merry Christmas and all that sort of rot, Babe!" she greeted her. "I suppose you've heard the news?"
Emmy shook her head as she laid another little package of hemstitched handkerchiefs down on the littered top of the powder table.

She lived among the Navajos and Pueblo tribes of central New Mexico for three years, gathering material which in large measure went into "Redskin." The Indian today, evidently, is the same as he was centuries ago. Once he gives his friendship, you can get any amount of co-operation from him—within reason.

It is made from powdered rocks of various colors on a bed of natural gray sand approximately eight by six feet in size. By carefully blending the different colored rocks the medicine men secure a variety of shades of the dry powder. The painting consists of four figures of a theme akin to the totems of the Alaskan tribes.

The first figure is traced with white rock powder. The second is a brilliant yellow. The third, a blue-gray, and the fourth a solid black. They are then elaborately decorated with minute lines, circles, and figures of geometric pattern. The whole, when completed, resembles an intricate Navajo rug.

TRIBUTE TO MEMORY OF DR. MOOREHEAD PAID AT SEMINARY

Tribute to the memory of Dr. William G. Moorehead, for forty years teacher in the Xenia Theological Seminary, formerly located in this city, but now of St. Louis, Mo., was paid by officials of the seminary Thursday.

At that time, the Rev. T. D. Edgar, of Wilkesburg, Pa., delivered a lecture on the "Life and Work of Dr. William G. Moorehead." Miss Margaret Moorehead, Dr. Moorehead's daughter, attended the ceremony. A fine oil portrait of Dr. Moorehead, which Miss Moorehead and her brother, William Moorehead, presented to the seminary when it was located here, had been forwarded to the St. Louis institution and was exhibited at the meeting.

At the meeting of the United Presbyterian General Assembly last May, a conference of the Xenia alumni was held, at which it was unanimously decided to honor Dr. Moorehead's memory by erecting and endowing a chair to be known as "The William G. Moorehead Chair of New Testament Literature."

Preliminary to any active effort in this direction, it was decided to have Dr. Edgar deliver the address at the ceremony.

JOHN E. MORRIS IS REMOVED BY DEATH

John Edward Morris, 48, former Xenian, died at his home, 645 Waterville Ave., Dayton, Friday evening at 6:20 o'clock.

He was born in Xenia, January 4, 1880. He has resided in Xenia several years and was employed eighteen years at the National Cash Register Co., and three years at the Delco Light Co.

He leaves his widow, Mrs. Florence Coate Morris; one son, Edward C., one granddaughter, Florence Marian Morris; his mother, Mrs. Sarah A. Morris; three brothers, Joseph N., Montecello, Calif., T. A., of LaGrange, Ill., and Fred of Portsmouth, Va., and one sister, Mrs. Jennie M. Jenkins of Xenia.

Funeral services will be held Monday at 2 o'clock at the Belmont U. B. Church with interment in Woodland Cemetery, Xenia.

CIVIC LEAGUE NOTES

It was reported at a recent meeting of the League that it is believed to be interfering with people's rights and business. This is a great mistake and a most complete misunderstanding of the object of the organization. There is absolutely no antagonism to any form of business in Xenia that is for the growth or betterment of the city. Instead of this, the League, by supporting our city authorities on civic questions, hopes to make Xenia a better place to live in, a better place to buy in, a better place to take pride in. The League asks that these critics come to its meetings and learn at first hand what, why, and how it is attempting to help make Xenia lovely so that we may love it more.

A suggestion that shooting into the black-bird's roosts has been tried elsewhere and should be tried faithfully here must receive the sanction of the city officers before trying it. Shooting within the city limits is forbidden except on special permission.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK DRAWS FIRES

The third and fourth fires which have occurred in Xenia during "Fire Prevention Week" resulted in no damage Friday.

Firemen were summoned at 12:45 p. m. to extinguish a pile of burning leaves on N. Detroit St. opposite a filling station.

Firemen also visited the residence of Oliver Thomas, colored, 833 E. Main St., at 3:20 p. m. when smoke, caused by an over-heated coal oil stove, filled the basement.

The family was not at home but men putting in a load of coal in the cellar turned in the smoke-filled basement.

He left his shop and on arriving home told his wife and son he was ill and succumbed a short time later.

HOOVER ALPHABET

By Mabel F. Martin

GENERALSHIP: His Peaceful Forces Greater Than Any General's

Herbert Hoover is essentially a leader. His generalship has never been surpassed in war or peace, yet he has none of the stern attributes of a commander nor has he ever been forced to exercise them, for his followings have always been voluntary.

As head of the Food Administration from 1917 through the war, he was the leader of 20,000,000 American women who followed a rigid regime of food saving laid out by Mr. Hoover, to such a point that had the war lasted years longer, the country and its overseas forces would not have felt the pinch of hunger as did the people of other war stricken nations.

Likewise, during his engineering career, he directed at one time nearly 200,000 workers who not only were completely satisfied with their working conditions but idolized their Chief. Hoover lays plans and they are so clear and convincing that others are left to carry them out to the letter, knowing that they will derive the greatest benefit in the end.

Rev. Eidemiller addressed the Sunday School officers and teachers, Sunday morning on the Price of Leadership, talking from the following points which had been used by Dan West in his talk to a similar group at the conference at Sugar Grove:

1. The leader must care for those under his charge.
2. Preparation for the task.
3. Not to who received the credit.
4. Devotion to task, despite criticism or opposition.

In elaborating these points Mr.

TRIBUTE TO MEMORY OF DR. MOOREHEAD PAID AT SEMINARY

Tribute to the memory of Dr. William G. Moorehead, for forty years teacher in the Xenia Theological Seminary, formerly located in this city, but now of St. Louis, Mo., was paid by officials of the seminary Thursday.

At that time, the Rev. T. D. Edgar, of Wilkinsburg, Pa., delivered a lecture on the "Life and Work of Dr. William G. Moorehead." Miss Margaret Moorehead, Dr. Moorehead's daughter, attended the ceremonies. A fine oil portrait of Dr. Moorehead, which Miss Moorehead and her brother, William Moorehead, presented to the seminary when it was located here, had been forwarded to the St. Louis institution and was exhibited at the meeting.

At the meeting of the United Presbyterian General Assembly last May, a conference of the Xenia alumni was held, at which it was unanimously decided to honor Dr. Moorehead's memory by erecting and endowing a chair to be known as "The William G. Moorehead Chair of New Testament Literature."

Preliminary to any active effort in this direction, it was decided to have Dr. Edgar deliver the address at the ceremony.

CIVIC LEAGUE NOTES

It was reported at a recent meeting of the League that it is believed to be interfering with people's rights and business. This is a great mistake and a most complete misunderstanding of the object of the organization. There is absolutely no antagonism to any form of business in Xenia that is for the growth or betterment of the city. Instead of this, the League, by supporting our city authorities on civic questions, hopes to make Xenia a better place to live in, a better place to buy in, a better place to take pride in. The League asks that these critics come to its meetings and learn at first hand what, why, and how it is attempting to help make Xenia lovely so that we may love it more.

A suggestion that shooting into the blackbird's nests has been effectual elsewhere and should be tried faithfully here must receive the sanction of the city officers before trying it. Shooting within the city limits is forbidden except on special permission.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK DRAWS FIRES

The third and fourth fires which have occurred in Xenia during "Fire Prevention Week" resulted in no damage Friday.

Firemen were summoned at 12:45 p. m. to extinguish a pile of burning leaves on N. Detroit St. opposite a filling station.

Firemen also visited the residence of Oliver Thomas, colored, 833 E. Main St., at 3:20 p. m. when smoke, caused by an overheated coal oil stove, filled the basement.

The family was not at home but men putting in a load of coal in the cellar turned in the alarm when they observed the smoke-filled basement.

HOOVER ALPHABET

By Mabel F. Martin

GENERALSHIP:

His Peaceful Forces Greater Than Any General's

Herbert Hoover is essentially a leader. His generalship has never been surpassed in war or peace, yet he has none of the stern attributes of a commander nor has he ever been forced to exercise them, for his followings have always been voluntary.

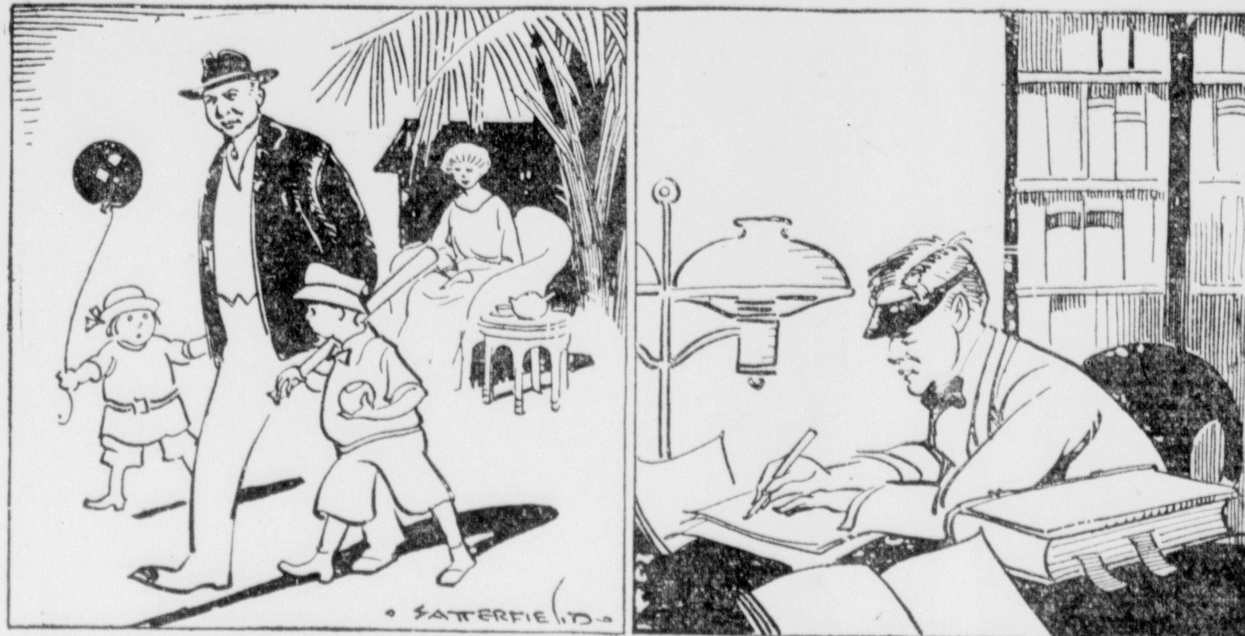

As head of the Food Administration from 1917 through the war, he was the leader of 20,000,000 American women who followed a rigid regime of food saving laid out by Mr. Hoover, to such a point that had the war lasted years longer, the country and its overseas forces would not have felt the pinch of hunger as did the people of other war-stricken nations.

Likewise, during his engineering career, he directed at one time nearly 200,000 workers who not only were completely satisfied with their working conditions but idolized their Chief. Hoover lays plans and they are so clear and convincing that others are led to carry them out to the letter, knowing that they will derive the greatest benefit in the end.

PICTORIAL LIFE OF HERBERT HOOVER

No. 10 By Satterfield

1. After their romantic years in China, the Hoovers settled down in America with their two boys.

2. During this period, Hoover made extensive contributions to the scientific literature of engineering.

3. His leisure time was spent in scientific experiment in his own private laboratory.

4. Camp life was his vacation hobby. He is the only man who can poach an egg on the end of a stick.

heavier Sunday by the addition of the offerings of the following who celebrated their birthdays that week, Miss Dot Koogler, Elwood Snyder and Cassius Moore.

Rev. Eldemiller addressed the Sunday School officers and teachers, Sunday morning on the Price of Leadership, talking from the following points which had been used by Dan West in his talk to a similar group at the conference at Sugar Grove:

1. The leader must care for those under his charge.
2. Preparation for the task.
3. Not to who received the credit.
4. Devotion to task, despite criticism or opposition.

In elaborating these points Mr.

Eldemiller's remarks were practical, helpful, convincing and inspiring, as usual, to each and all present.
